4 March 1960

Dear [REDACTED]

As you know, [REDACTED] is working on a project writing the history of OSS. He is planning to sail for England on the [REDACTED] Hotel until the 19th at which time he will proceed to Paris and participate in the festivities with the French Resistance Veterans about which [REDACTED] told you. [REDACTED] principal objective in England will be to analyze the changing British opinion in regard to the OSS. As you probably will recall, the British started off rather standoffish and regarded OSS with some skepticism, but by the end of the war had come around to respect and admire the work of the organization. [REDACTED] has mentioned among the people that he wants to talk to, Sir Claud Menzies, Gen. Gabbins and Cavendish Bendinck.

The purpose of this letter is to advise you of [REDACTED] projected trip and suggest that you may wish to think about others who would be useful contributors to this research. I have sent a copy of this letter to [REDACTED] and suggested that the Division give it some thought too.

With best wishes, as always.

Sincerely yours,

SIGNED
